Blue Grass Regions. All the way from Washington till I struck the heart of Kentucky the farmer in me was unhappy; he saw hardly a rood of land that he would like to call his own. But that remnant of the wild man of the woods, which most of us still carry, saw much that delighted him especially down the New river, where the rocks and the waters and the steep forest clad mountains were as wild and as savage as anything he had known in his early Darwinian ages. But when we emerged upon the banks of the Great Kanawha the man of the woods lost hi interest and the man of the fields saw little that was comforting.

When we cross the line into Kentucky I said, we shall see a change. But no, we did not. The farmer still groaned in spirit; no thrifty farms, no substantial homes, no neat villages, no good roads anywhere, but squalor and sterility on every hand. Nearly all the afternoon we rode through a country like the poor-er parts of New England, unredeemed by anything like New England thrift. It was a country of coal, a very new country, geologically speaking, and the top soil did not seem to have had time it issues. to become deepened and enriched by vegetable mold.

Near sundown, as I glanced out of the window, I thought I began to see, a change. Presently I was very sure I did. It began to appear in the more grassy character of the woods. Then I caught sight of peculiarly soft and uniform grassy patches here and there in the open. Then in a few moments more the Judge says the heat in the east is much me began to be on the alert. We had passed in a twinkling from a portion of the earth's surface which is new, which is of yesterday, to a portion which is of the oldest, from the carboniferous to the lower silurian. Here upon this lower silurian, the earth that saw and nourished the great monsters and dragons was growing the delicate blue grass. It had taken all these millions upon millions of taken all these millions upon millions of Brookie, in Woodford county, Ky. As we neared Mount Sterling how fat and smooth the land looked; what long, even, gently flowing lines against the fading western sky, broken here and there by herds of slowly grazing or else reposing and ruminating cattle! What peace and plenty it suggested! From a land raw and crude and bitter like unripe fruit we had suddenly been transported into the midst of one ripe and mellow with the fullness of time. It was sweet to look upon. I was seized with a strong desire to go forth and taste mind would have been led upward by a it by a strolf through it in the twilight. -John Burroughs in Century.

Waite, at one time proprietor of the old Sherman house Chicago, and for many years a leading hotel keeper of New York city (being sole proprietor of the Brevoort house and part proprietor of the Windson hotel), at his death left a son, Charles B. His connection with other boodle aldermen in New York is well remembered and two or three years ago he left that city for California, where he has since led a desultory existence. For years the elder Waite employed as chef of the Brevoort house Eugene Mehl, who was very justly regarded as one of the most capable men that ever took charge of a kitchen and to whom Mr Waite paid for many years the munifi cent salary of $6,000 per annum. W. C. SMITH & CO He Laughed Too Soon

A well dressed, ladylike looking woman entered a tramcar the other day with her little boy of about 6 years of age. On the conductor coming to collect the fares the lady handed her little son a half crown, he being nearer the door. The little fellow examined the coin carefully and then gave it to the conductor. Scarcely had the man returned the change than the youngster clapped his hands and looking at his mother exclaimed triumphantly: "Mamma, mamma, he has taken the bad half crown!"-London Tid Bits.
